Title FREE EXPRESSION ON CAMPUS

1. General Rights of Free Expression on Campus

- 1.1 The College upholds and promotes free expression on campus. Except as limited by regulations consistent with the law and this rule:
 - 1.1.1 all faculty, students, and staff have the right to express views and ideas and are free to criticize, contest, and condemn views expressed on campus, and
 - 1.1.2 neither the faculty, staff, nor students may obstruct, disrupt, suppress or otherwise interfere with the freedom of others to express views.
- 1.2 The College's outdoor areas are a traditional public forum.
- 1.3 The College may not prohibit:
 - 1.3.1 a member of the College's community or the public from spontaneously and contemporaneously assembling in an outdoor areas of the College's campus; or
 - 1.3.2 a person from freely engaging in noncommercial expressive activity in outdoor areas of the College's campus if the person's conduct is lawful.

2. Time, Place, and Manner Restrictions

- 2.1 The College may reasonably regulate the time, place, and manner of free expression to ensure that it does not disrupt the ordinary activities of the College. This includes established procedures for engaging in organized speech activities, such as protest marches or invited speakers.
- 2.2 These exceptions to the principle of freedom of expression must be viewpoint neutral, generally content neutral, narrowly tailored, and leave ample opportunity for alternative means for expression, in order to protect the College's interests. It is vitally important that the College will not use these exceptions in a manner that is inconsistent with the College's commitment to free and open discussion of ideas.
